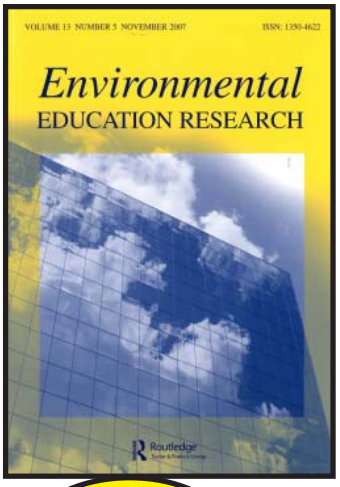
Environmental Education Research

Special Issue on Education for Sustainable Development in Higher Education



The impact of sustainability issues is real and evident at all levels from personal and local to global, and a conventional 'business as usual' approach across all sectors of society going into an uncertain future seems increasingly less probable – and possible. How is or should higher education (HE) respond to this changing context? In April 2008, Stephen Gough – a co-author of the recent Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) strategic review of sustainable development in HE – spoke at the Environmental Association for Universities and Colleges (EAUC) national conference about the review. He ended with a pointed remark with words to the effect, 'I don't know if we will achieve a breakthrough to a greener future or not, but whichever it is, higher education will have had something to do with it. Sterling, S and Scott, W.
